Why Choose Us?

Opportunities for Growth and Education at KDDS

Traditionally, students taking a gap year have pursued research opportunities; however, many students would prefer something more clinically oriented. These future physicians represent a highly qualified and motivated, but as of yet underutilized workforce.

The 14-month gap year program gives students unique educational opportunities and clinical experiences that prepare them to be excellent doctors. See what joining the KDDS practice could mean for you!

“...an unparalleled opportunity”

Work closely with doctors and patients to gain valuable hands-on medical experience while networking within your field of interest.

The Gap Year Program

Patient care coordinators fulfill both traditional roles of medical assistant and medical receptionist.

Responsibilities include coordinating busy clinics for multi-tasking dermatologists, assisting with procedures, and instructing patients.

At the front desk, coordinators answer phones, check-in patients, schedule appointments, and interface with outside health professionals.

Students also participate in seminars consisting of lectures by dermatologists. The program offers unique experiences such as attending medical conferences.

Program Requirements

Successful candidates will have graduated from a four-year university with all pre-medical requirements satisfied. Intention to matriculate in an MD or MD-PhD program at the conclusion of the fourteen or twenty-six month program is required.

To apply, please submit a cover letter and one-page resume.

On-campus interviews are conducted at several universities at the beginning of the calendar year. June and July are important opportunities for incoming gap year students to learn from outgoing medical students.
